

Renaissance and Baroque Musical Sources in the Americas, Name Index

Introduction

COMPILED DURING Robert Stevenson's journeys southward in the 1950s and 1960s, the contents of Renaissance and Baroque Musical Sources in the Americas were typed by magnificent Goldye Oberwager at Central Stenographic Bureau, University of California, Los Angeles, and the music examples after page 346 at additional pages 1-73 were autographed by meticulous Cootje Franken. In the preface, Stevenson wrote: "A pioneer work of the present sort will happily stimulate the specific suggestions for improvements made in a second, printed edition." Thirty years later none is forthcoming. Paul W. Borg's inimitable Ph.D. dissertation "The Polyphonic Music in the Guatemalan Music Manuscripts of the Lilly Library" (Indiana University, 1985, 2 vols., 666 pp.), which should immediately have been published, corrects, amplifies, and extends all entries in RBMSA at pages 55-64. He himself did publish "The Jacaltenango Miscellany: A Revised Catalogue," in Inter-American Music Review, III/1 (Fall 1980).

Aurelio Tello's Archivo Musical de la Catedral de Oaxaca, Catálogo (Mexico City: Centro Nacional de Investigación, Documentación e Información Musical; 117 pp.) outstrips, augments, and adumbrates

RBMSA, pages 193-207. Especially welcome are the 301 + 121 thematic incipits. Altogether this catalogue sets a model for forthcoming promised catalogues of the music treasures in other Mexican cathedrals and the Virgin of Guadalupe colegiata.

Stevenson's "Sixteenth- through Eighteenth-Century Resources in Mexico: Part III," Fontes artis musicae, 1978/2 (April-June), pages 156-87, itemizes 130 items in the Puebla Cathedral archive not bespoken in RBMSA at pages 208-21, but does not yet begin to exhaust the record of holdings in what must be conceded the supreme repository of historic music in any Western Hemisphere Cathedral.

The music itemized in RBMSA at pages 107-9 and 222-52 has now passed to the Archivo Nacional de Bolivia at Sucre. Other transferences may consign whole sections of the repertoires itemized in RBMSA to mere memories. For comments on the perils that encircled and continue endangering Latin American colonial archives, the user of the name index that follows at pages 72-77 is referred to Gerard Béhague's indispensable review published in Gilbert Chase's Yearbook for Inter-American Musical Research, Volume x (1974), pages 211-13.
